Heritage Statement

Our application is to add a chimney, folding doors and to use the current outbuilding/store as a home office and living space which will be ancillary to The House. The existing outbuilding/store is in the garden of The House, The Street in Oaksey.

The outbuilding was a slaughterhouse from 1907 till about 1975, when new rules were implemented around the slaughtering of animals. From the drawing attached you can see that it had doors leading out onto the main road going through Oaksey. The roof has the existing roof tiles. Around 39 years ago the property was sold to a property developer who closed the door to the road. Since this time the outbuilding has been used for storage.

The client and I are keen to keep all the original features of the outbuilding and to sympathetically add glass doors to an existing opening that opens into the garden. As you can see the chimney will be in the middle of the room and ridge, this is to allow heat during the winter months while having as a home office/living space. This space will be completely ancillary to The House.

If you have any questions about the proposed works, please let me know.

Please see photos attached I have taken when visiting the site to do a site survey.
