Hi Tim,

Below is an email sent to me this morning from Tristan Johnson Ltd Thatching straw suppliers, regarding the low supply of wheat Straw as discussed.

In answer to the questions about the barn if to be thatched in Water Reed:

The roof would not need to be completely stripped to the timbers, only the top coat of thatch, as I would plan to fix a new Reed coat with spars onto the under layers. Some extra stripping of thatch may be required at the eave to accommodate the longer length of water Reed.

Hopefully this will help with any application for change of materials for progression of the barn being thatched after such a long wait!

Kind regards

Brad

Hi Bradley,

I am writing to you today, about the ongoing straw shortages that we are continually facing nationwide.

It has been a real struggle and because of the continued poor harvests, we haven't got the stock to supply you at this moment in time. We can of course re-evaluate the situation in the new season which will be august to September of this year 2026.

Everything largely depends on the weather and that in itself looks rather worrying at this point...

Apologies for the inconvenience and not to give you better news.

All the best

Jack
