

A detailed site plan for a residential development. The plan shows a central building with a complex, multi-faceted roof structure, possibly a central tower or a series of interconnected volumes. This building is surrounded by several other plots, some of which are currently empty, while others contain smaller, simpler buildings. The plan also includes landscaping elements, such as several large, circular tree symbols and smaller, more detailed tree symbols. A road, labeled 'NORTHGATE STREET', runs along the top edge of the plan. The overall layout suggests a central hub or a focal point within a larger residential context.
